

MY JOURNEY TO THE MANASAROVAR AND TO THE SOURCES OF THE SATLEJ AND THE INDUS

	Page
CHAPTER XXII. Surroundings of the Manasarovar . . . . .	149
» XXIII. The depth of the Manasarovar . . . . .	163
» XXIV. Surroundings of the Rakas-tal . . . . .	166
» XXV. The oscillations in the water-level of the lakes . . . . .	171
» XXVI. Precipitation in N.W. India compared with the oscillations in the lakes	189
» XXVII. The movements of the Kumdan glaciers compared with the oscillations in the lakes . . . . .	193
» XXVIII. The Tso-morari compared with the Manasarovar . . . . .	201
» XXIX. The importance of glacier sources . . . . .	205
» XXX. The source of the Indus . . . . .	211

THE TSANGPO AND ITS SOURCE

CHAPTER XXXI. The Catholic Missionaries on the upper Tsangpo . . . . .	217
» XXXII. European speculation up to the middle of the last century . . . . .	222
» XXXIII. Thomas W. Webber . . . . .	227
» XXXIV. Nain Sing . . . . .	233
» XXXV. Kawaguchi . . . . .	238
» XXXVI. Ryder, Rawling, Sandberg, and others . . . . .	243
» XXXVII. The source of the Brahmaputra . . . . .	251
» XXXVIII. The Tsangpo and its tributaries as represented by the Catholic Missionaries and van de Putte . . . . .	267
» XXXIX. Bogle, Turner and Manning . . . . .	270
» XL. Nain Sing and the Tsangpo . . . . .	273
» XLI. The Pundits and the Tsangpo-Brahmaputra problem . . . . .	277
» XLII. European speculation before Ryder's survey . . . . .	284
» XLIII. Ryder, Rawling, and Burrard . . . . .	287

MY JOURNEY ALONG THE TSANGPO

CHAPTER XLIV. The Tsangpo from Karu to Shigatse . . . . .	293
» XLV. The Tsangpo from Ye to the junction of the Dok-chu . . . . .	302
» XLVI. The Tsangpo and the Chaktak-tsangpo . . . . .	307