

thought I was not pleased with the trees under which he spread the first "dastarkhan," yet the same man spoke most peremptorily to his fellow villagers, many of whom honored him by jumping off their horses on his approach, and bending forward with their hands crossed over their stomachs.