

- Kuh-i-Mahella, table-mountain of, i. 288, 291
 Malek Siah, ii. 304; the meeting-place of three kingdoms, ii. 309; agreeable meeting at customs-station, ii. 310
 margho, ii. 80, 83, 86, 87, 94, 107
 murghab, ii. 111, 115, 119, 123
 Naibend, ii. 86, 90, 92, 94, 110, 112, 119
 nakhiya, ii. 100
 nakshir, camp at, i. 238; rest and consultation at, i. 240; information obtained from camel-herd near, i. 243; view of, from the Kevir, i. 246
 Neh, ii. 139
 nekhlek, i. 286
 nigu, i. 291, 294
 Nu (Mount Ararat), i. 77
 ombar, ii. 126
 piran, ii. 314
 pusht-i-badam, ii. 1
 rabat-i-khan, ii. 1
 rume, camel-fight at, ii. 135
 serd, "the cold hill," ii. 107
 ser-i-Kevir, i. 384
 Shah, ii. 127, 132
 Shah-Dost, ii. 247
 shushu, ii. 136
 shuturi, "camel hill," range of, ii. 22, 25, 28, 45, 83, 94, 107
 siah-tagh, range, i. 400
 sur, i. 288
 surkh, ii. 3
 Tallhe, i. 233
 torosho, ii. 83, 84, 92
 Kuh-khar, i. 207
Kullah, or lambskin cap, i. 42
 Kulli, i. 120
 Kuraldi, i. 68
 Kurdan station-house, toll exacted at, i. 154
 Kurit, starting-point for Bahabad, camp at, ii. 65
 Kurujuk, i. 61
 Labour troubles, in Batum, i. 4; in Poti, i. 15
 Lake, nameless desert, ii. 81-83
 Lake, subterranean, the Kevir actually a, i. 248
 Lakes, distribution of, in Persia, ii. 175; position of sand-belts in relation to, ii. 176, 177; terrace formations in, ii. 212
 Landmarks in journey across the Kevir, i. 348, 350, 355, 386, 387
 Lar, group of hills and valley of, ii. 314
 Larkhan, i. 31
 Lava, black, at Pervadeh, ii. 87
 Laziness, general characteristic of Persians, i. 222
 Legends as to formation of the Kevir, ii. 150
 Lehran-su, river, i. 108
 Léontieff, M., on climatic changes in Baluchistan, ii. 205
 Leopards, ii. 19
 Leshker-i-ab, sweet spring of, ii. 314
 Lewenhaupt, Count Claes, i. 153
 Loewe, Dr., Teheran, i. 158
 Longworth, Mr., English Consul at Trebizond, i. 27
 Lopatin, stationmaster at Poti, i. 15
 Löss, deposits of, at Turut, i. 378; ii. 222
 Lut desert, the, ii. 111, 116; salt swamps of, ii. 119, 134, 148; mythical town in, ii. 124; quotation from Khanikoff, in charge of expedition through, ii. 145; Professor A. von Bunge's description of, ii. 146; roads through, ii. 147, 158, 159; Persian Boundary Commission's route through, ii. 148; Lieut.-Colonel Stewart's journey in, ii. 154; Lieutenant Galindo's crossings of, ii. 156; vast unexplored region of, ii. 158; period of caravan traffic in, ii. 160; compared with the Kevir, ii. 161; meaning of the term "lut," ii. 184; originally the basin of a great lake, ii. 221
 M'Gregor, General Sir C. M., description of the Kevir by, ii. 149; on driftsand near Yezd, ii. 239
 M'Mahon, Colonel Sir Henry, Commission on water-supply of Seistan under, ii. 293; description of the God-i-Zirre, ii. 318
 Macpherson, Captain, English Consul-General at Nasretabad, ii. 257; letter of welcome from, ii. 270; letters from, at Robat, ii. 311
 Madali, our competent guide, i. 287, 317
 Maden-i-nekhlek, i. 287
 Maden-khan, i. 48
 Makdisi, Arabian geographer, account of the Kevir, ii. 143, 147
 Maki-cha, river, ii. 316
 Mal, bungalow of, ii. 338
 Malan-kuh, ii. 323
 Maligat-i-barut, oasis of, ii. 332
 Map of Persia (Survey of India), referred to, ii. 73, 158; maps of Alexander the Great's march, cited, ii. 197; erroneous details in maps of the Kevir, ii. 230
 Map of route, beginning made with, i. 179
 Marand, halt at, i. 117; entertained by Governor of, i. 118-120
 Marco Polo, route across Persia and description of desert by, ii. 67; substantial accuracy of, ii. 68; variety of