CH. LXXX CROSSING THE PEI-SHAN DESERT 341

their cart. The prayer proved efficacious. The corpse travelled safely to An-hsi, where Chiang secured a sound coffin. Then he carried his late companion's body faithfully all the four or five months' journey to Hu-nan and delivered it to his relatives. With no word did Chiang allude to the inconvenience he had suffered himself by his pious action.

and the state of t

and the second second

Joseph Comment of the Comment of the state o to the affine the party of the second body from the borness bad

The second second is a second second

The second secon

whom who goes should be to be the world of the world of the best o

the state of the s