

Route

from MÄSSÚRI to NAINITÁL, see NAINITÁL to MÄSSÚRI.

Route

from MÄSSÚRI to NÍTI:
by Tíri, Deúl, Srinágar, Kärnpreg, Keterbál, Jhósimath, Tapubán (see Nos. 227, 61, 203, 204, 97, 101, 78, and 223).

Route

from MÄSSÚRI to TÍRI,
see No. 227.

MESTÚJ, routes to and from, see DRÖS to BOKHÁRA, No. 66.

Route

from MÍLUM to Δ BÄGDOÁR,
see No. 11.

Route

from MÍLUM to KÁTHI,
see No. 100.

Route No. 141.

From MÍLUM (Kämäon) to Δ LOÁKA (Kämäon).

A principal route, passable for horses.

Maps: Cunningham's Pänjáb and Western Himálaya.— Strachey's Kämäon and Gärhvál.

Mílum, 30° 34'.6; 79° 54'.8; 11,265 ft., near the left bank of the Góri river—Cross the Gúnka river near its confluence with the Góri river—Continue along the slopes to its left—Cross the Haskúri river—Δ Mágoni—Δ Chimgáü —Δ Dagbazín—Cross the Koalgóng river (level of the confluence with the Gúnka river 11,895 ft.)
—Δ Samgáng (12,146 ft.), 4 hours' march from Mílum—Cross two rivers—Cross several snow bridges.

Δ Tálla Shállong (12,813 ft.), or the lower Shállong, 3 hours' march from Δ Samgáng. Grass and shrubs still plentiful. Scarcely any fuel at next stage; collect it here—Δ Málla Shállong (13,225 ft.), or the upper Shállong, 3/4 hour's walk from Δ Tálla Shállong. Just at the limit of shrubs. If camp is small, make Mílum to Δ Málla Shállong one stage; a large encampment will do better at Δ Tálla Shállong on account of pasturage and shrubs—Cross the Shúti páni nálah—Old moraine (fine view of the Sílka Dung peak)—Δ Small nálah—Δ Baltánga meadows—Δ Dung, on the Lessór river (confluence of Lessór and Úta Dhúra rivers, 13,589 ft.), 2 1/4 hours' march from Δ Málla Shál-long—Ascend the Úta Dhúra glacier—Δ Shikaldáni, on the left side of the glacier—Δ Bomráss—Δ Kal Máddia—Δ Chim (6,250 ft.), 7 hours' march from Δ Málla Shállong—Cross the Úta Dhúra pass (17,627 ft.). Ascent tolerably steep—Lower end of the northern Úta Dhúra glacier (15,970 ft.), 2 hours' march from the top of the pass.

Δ Loáka, 30° 46'; 79° 55'; 15,831 ft. A long and trying stage from Δ Tálla Shállong to Loáka; occupies at least 10 hours. Fuel and grass scarce at Δ Loáka.