

Route

from MÍLUM to MĀSSÚRI, see MĀSSÚRI to MÍLUM.

Route

from MÍLUM to NAINITÁL, see NAINITÁL to MÍLUM.

MONSÚRI is the name given by the natives to MĀSSÚRI.

Route

from MÓRANG to BRUÁNG, OR BÁRANG, see No. 32.

Route

from MÓRANG to CHÉTKUL,
see No. 39.

Route No. 142.

From MÓRANG (Kānāur) to DÁBLING (Kānāur).

A principal route, passable for horses.

Literature: Gerard's Koonawur, pp. 278-81.

Maps: Gerard's Koonawur.—Indian Atlas, sheets 47 (second edition) and 65.

Mórang, 31° 35'; 78° 24'—Cross the Túngrang pass (13,739 ft.).

Nísang (10,148 ft.), E. of the Sátlej river, 15 miles from Ríspe; a long march.

Camp near a Buddhist temple (road very bad; toilsome ascents and descents).

III.

Dábling, 31° 45'; 78° 37'; 9,311 ft., on the left bank of the Sátlej river.

MOZĀFARABÁD, routes to and from, see SRINÁGAR to RAULPÍNDI, No. 205.

Route No. 143.

From MÚKBA (Gārhvāl) to CHÉTKUL (Gārhvāl).

A difficult route at any time of the year, though occasionally used by the Bisséris. Road bad, impassable for horses. Provisions to be collected for two marches, wood for one march at Kókor.

Literature: Hoffmeister's Briefe aus Indien, pp. 236-50.

Maps: Hoffmeister's Profiles, No. 7.—Indian Atlas, sheet 65.

Múkba, 31° 2'; 78° 46'; 8,600 ft., on the right bank of the Bhagiráthi river—Ascend the Hirsál valley.

Kókor, on the right bank of the Hirsál river, a very small place—Continue along the left bank of the Gúmti river—△ Bankára.

△ Fulaldár, or △ Fuladáru (11,272 ft.), on the left bank of the Gúmti river—Continue along the left bank of the Gúmti river—Cross some snow-bridges.

△ *Kiarkótti*¹ (ab. 11,700 ft.)—Cross some snowbeds and the Lámba Kága glacier pass, 15,355 ft.; slopes towards △ Do Súmdo steep; road very bad.

△ Do Súmdo (13,366 ft.), on the left bank of the Bása river (which in its upper part is frequently called Kérmom nálah). Here the road branches off to Nélong and to Békhar. (See Routes Nos. 153 and 65.)

Chétkul, 31° 20'; 78° 36'; 11,480 ft., on the right bank of the Bása river (level of the river 11,275 ft.). From △ Do Súmdo to Chétkul is a very long

¹ From here the road branches off to the Chóta Kága pass, W.N.W. of the Lámba Kága pass. The Chóta Kága pass is not so regularly crossed as the Lámba Kága pass. The road joins again at △ Do Súmdo.

12