

Firozabád, in the Dékhan, Lat. 17°, Long. 77° . . . . . فیروز آباد Arab. Pers.

“Firóz’ town, or Abode of prosperity.” Firóz, prosperous, a personal name.

Anal. Feróz-pur, in Hindostán, Lat. 27, Long. 77°, Lat. 28°, Long. 78°, Lat. 29°, Long. 77°, Lat. 29°, Long. 78°; in the Pānjáb, Lat. 30°, Long. 75°; Feróz Shah, in the Pānjáb, Lat. 30°, Long. 74°.

Gabhásti, a Sanskrit name for the Brahmapútra river, q. v.

Gálle, in Ceylon, Lat. 6°, Long. 80° . . . . . Singhal.

“Rock.” Also as a component part in many other Singhalese names, as in Tang-gálle, gold-rock, Lat. 6°, Long. 81°, &c.

Gambhír, a river in Málva . . . . . گمبھیر Hind.

“The deep (river).” The same river name in Rajvára.

Gambhírgárh, in Kandésh, Lat. 20°, Long. 73° . . . . . گمبھیر گڑھ Hind.

Gambhíra is concealed, secret, besides deep. The latter might be perhaps referred to a river near it or to ditches around it.

Anal. Gambhírpur, in Hindostán, Lat. 25°, Long. 82°.

Gandharbgárh, in Málabar, Lat. 15°, Long. 74° . . . . . گندھرب گڑھ Hind.

“The town of the Gandhárbs.” The Gandhárbs are demi-gods and the musicians in Indra’s heaven. Wilson, Sanskrit Dictionary.

Ganéspur, in Hindostán, Lat. 26°, Long. 82° . . . . . गणेशपुर (Sansk.) Hind.

“Ganésa’s town.” Ganésa is the god of wisdom, generally represented with an elephant’s head.

Gangaprasád, in Bengál, Lat. 25°, Long. 87° . . . . . गङ्गाप्रसाद Sanskr.

“Gánga’s favour.” Prasáda, offer to a deity, favour.

Gangapúra, in Rajvára . . . . . गङ्गापुरा (Sansk.) Hind.

“River town.”

Ganges river. The European form of the name is the Greek modification. The Sanskrit and Hindostáni form is Gángā (feminine); also very frequently met with in compound river names, as Ramgánga, Kaligánga, &c.

Gangótri, see Jāmnótri.