Sıkh, a widely spread tribe in North-western India. . . . . سيكھ Hind.

    "Disciples, or Learners." From the Hind. síkhnā, to learn. Vigne's "Kashmír," p. 244.

Silhĕt, in Bengál, Lat. 24°, Long. 91° . . . . سلهت Hind.

    "The holy market." From the Sanskr. श्रीहट्ट Srihátta: the Bengáli name in use is still Srihótto.

Símla, a sanitarium, Lat. 31°, Long. 77°, and district in the Western Himálaya. . . . . سملا Hind.

    This place is said to have its name from a plant, Bombax malabarica (silk-cotton tree), frequently met with in this region; the native name of this plant is Sémul. Journ. As. Soc.
    Beng., Vol. XVIII., p. 431.

Sindh, or Síndhu, a river . . . . सिन्धु Sanskr.

    "(The Indus) River in general (also ocean)."
    There are several rivers of this name in India, and the same denomination is bestowed on the country adjacent to the lower course of the Indus, from Lat. 23—29°.

Singhgărh, in the Kónkan, Lat. 18°, Long. 73° . . . . سنگھ گڑھ Hind.

    "Singh's or Lion's fort." The same name in Lat. 27°, Long. 73°.
    Anal. Singa-púr, properly Singha-púr, in the Straits, Lat. 1°, Long. 103°; Singh-pur, in Berár, Lat. 22°, Long. 79°, and Lat. 22°, Long. 82°, &c. ; in Málva, Lat. 24°, Long. 82°;
    Singh-púram, in Oríssa, Lat. 19°, Long. 83°.

Singrúl, in Ladák, Lat. 34°, Long. 77° . . . . གསིང་རུལ ɡsing-rul. Tib.

    "The putrid moor." ɢsing, a place covered with small green grass, a moor; rul, putrid. The name refers to a swampy ground near the village where was formerly a lake.

Sínka Tong, in Kămáon, Lat. 30°, Long. 80° . . . . སྟོང stong. Tib.

    "The thousand Sínkas or gods." Sínka, name of a divinity, perhaps a provincial modification of seng-ge, lion; stong, thousand.

Sirdhárpur, in Audh, Lat. 26°, Long. 80° . . . . سردھر پور Hind.

    "Vishnu's town." Sirdhár, properly Sridhára, possessed of divinity, is a Sanskrit epithet of Víshnu.

Sitagúdam, in the Dékhan, Lat. 17°, Long. 80° . . . . سيتا گوڈم Sanskr. Tam.

    "Síta's town." Síta is the name of Ráma's wife.
    Anal. Síta-pálli, in the Dékhan, Lat. 18°, Long. 80°; Sita-púr, in Bahár, Lat. 26°, Long. 83°;
    Sita-kúnd, in Bahár, Lat. 25°, Long. 86°; Siu-gárh = Sita-gárh, in Audh, Lat. 27°, Long. 81°.